

Cathy Beck on the Bonefish Line

“Imagine a bright tropical sun flooding across a white sand flat. You slowly wade ever alert looking for tell tale shadows or nervous water. If you’re lucky there may be tails to indicate the ghost of the flats—bonefish. At the right moment, you make a cast and it finds its target, your reel sings as fly line and backing disappear.

This to me is paradise found. Fly fishing for bonefish is high on my list when it comes to tropical flats and my fly reels are always spooled with RIO Bonefish lines. The specially designed front taper on the bonefish lines easily turn over my longest leaders and yet give me the delicate presentation that I often need in skinny water with spooky fish. But most of all I appreciate the high floating running line (made possible by AgentX) which is critical to a wading angler.”
